In 2010, the U.S. market for infusion therapy devices exceeded $4.9 billion, a 4.6% increase over the previous year.

This market includes:

• needleless connectors,

• infusion pumps and

• intravenous (IV) sets.

It is expected to be driven by strong growth in the needleless connector market as the industry moves towards making their procedure completely needle-free. CareFusion led the market for the overall infusion therapy devices, dominating the large infusion pumps segment. Other major competitors in the U.S. market included Baxter International, I-Flow, Hospira, ICU Medical and Rymed Technologies.

This report provides a comprehensive and detailed analysis of market revenues by device type, market forecasts through 2017, unit sales, average selling prices, market drivers and limiters and a detailed competitive analysis, including manufacturer market shares and product portfolios.
