Practice Fusion Announces Free EMR for iPad in Beta

Bio-Medicine.Org

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13, 2012 /PRNewswire/ -- Practice Fusion today announced the beta launch of their Electronic Medical Record [1] (EMR) for the iPad, answering the demand of the nation's largest doctor-patient community. The new platform for securely accessing patient records and documenting visits on the iPad was designed with an intuitive, touch-screen interface together with the leading design firm, Cooper [2].

(Logo: http://photos.prnewswire.com/prnh/20091118/PFLOGO [3])

Due to high demand for beta access, Practice Fusion is limiting availability to medical providers on a first-come, first-served basis. Interested health care professionals can join the wait list at www.practicefusion.com/beta [4].

"One in four doctors adopting an Electronic Medical Record [1] system today is choosing Practice Fusion because it is free and easy-to-use," said Ryan Howard, CEO of Practice Fusion. "With launch of the most elegant and intuitive iPad product on the market, we're sweetening the deal even further. Now more than ever, there is absolutely no reason for a doctor to spend money on EMR technology."

Key Facts:

- Currently in limited release, medical professionals can sign up for the iPad beta waiting list at www.practicefusion.com/beta [4].
- The first version of Practice Fusion's EMR
'/>"/>

Source URL (retrieved on 03/10/2014 - 12:42pm):
http://www.mdtmag.com/news/2012/11/practice-fusion-announces-free-emr-ipad-beta?qt-most_popular=0&qt-video_of_the_day=0

Links:
[1] http://www.practicefusion.com/?utm_source=prnewswire&utm_medium=pressrelease&utm_campaign=ipad111312
[2] http://www.cooper.com/#home:home
[3] http://photos.prnewswire.com/prnh/20091118/PFLOGO
[4] http://www.practicefusion.com/beta/?utm_source=prnewswire&utm_medium=pressrelease&utm_campaign=ipad111312