

Civitas taps backers to bump Series A round to $28M

Mass High Tech: The Journal of New England Technology

Civitas Therapeutics Inc., which launched in January with a $20 million Series A funding round, has now bumped that up to $28 million, according to federal documents [1].

The original filing [2] with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in January shows that Civitas had taken $10 million of the $20 million committed funding from backers that include co-lead investors Longitude Capital, which has an office in Greenwich, Conn., and Canaan Partners. The latest filing posted today shows that Civitas has now taken in $14 million and that the top end of the Series A round has jumped to $28 million.

SOURCE [3]

Source URL (retrieved on 01/31/2015 - 11:48am):

<http://www.mdtmag.com/news/2011/05/civitas-taps-backers-bump-series-round-28m>

Links:

[1] http://www.sec.gov/Archives/edgar/data/1509697/000150969711000002/xslFormDX01/primary_doc.xml

[2] http://www.sec.gov/Archives/edgar/data/1509697/000150969711000001/xslFormDX01/primary_doc.xml

[3] <http://www.masshightech.com/stories/2011/05/02/daily12-Civitas-taps-backers-to-bump-Series-A-round-to-28M.html>