

Whistleblower claims Siemens' China division fired him for exposing bribery scheme

Mass Device

Whistleblower Meng-Lin Liu accuses Siemens China of engaging in an illegal kickbacks scheme and of firing him when he brought evidence to the company's regional CFO.

European technology giant Siemens [1] (NYSE:SI [2]) was sued by a former employee who claimed that he was fired for blowing the whistle on an illegal bribery scheme.

Meng-Lin Liu, who worked in Siemens' China unit, said he was fired after he brought evidence of what called a "classic bribery or 'kickback' scheme" to Siemens China's healthcare CFO. He claims he was forced to take a leave of absence within 1 week of speaking with the CFO, and that his employment contract was not renewed when it expired a few months later.

Source URL (retrieved on 03/06/2015 - 4:02am):

<http://www.mdtmag.com/news/2013/01/whistleblower-claims-siemens-china-division-fired-him-exposing-bribery-scheme>

Links:

[1] <http://www.massdevice.com/company/siemens>

[2] <http://www.google.com/finance?q=NYSE:SI>