

Match Point Partners' Brad Burkett Named Interim CEO and CRO at Oncure Medical Corp.; Reflects Match Point's Hands-On Approach to Help Companies Maximize Value

The Associated Press

Match Point Partners LLC, a strategy and financial advisory firm that helps healthcare and technology companies manage and grow through inflection points and maximize long-term value, today announced that Brad Burkett, Founder and Senior Managing Director of the firm, has been named Interim CEO and Chief Restructuring Officer (CRO) at Oncure Medical Corp. Burkett will be assisted by a team of operational, finance and strategy professionals from Match Point that will help lead Oncure, a national network of cancer treatment centers.

"Our work at Oncure reflects Match Point's approach to partner closely with our clients in all aspects of their business to help them achieve their short and long-term objectives," said Burkett. "We follow through on our commitment by joining our clients on-site and working side-by-side with their teams. This depth of collaboration helps mitigate issues and consistently uncovers ongoing opportunities to create value."

Match Point Partners, launched in September 2012, was founded by Burkett and J.D. Friedland to help emerging and middle market healthcare and technology companies navigate through each phase of growth to maximize value. The firm partners with clients with a long-term view, serving as a catalyst to bring the right solution to bear at the right time through a combination of innovative strategic, operational and investment banking solutions. Services range from analyzing strategic, operational and financial issues to determine the optimal path forward, or implementing solutions or transactions that will help companies meet their financial and strategic objectives.
