

Medtronic's insulin pump recall gets FDA's highest-risk label

Mass Device

U.S. healthcare regulators put their highest-risk Class I label on Medtronic's Paradigm insulin infusion pump recall.

Medtronic

The FDA put its highest-risk label, Class I, on a recall of Medtronic's [1] (NYSE:MDT [2]) Paradigm insulin infusion pumps, which the medtech giant had warned about earlier this year.

Medtronic Canada said last month that it received 2 reports on its Paradigm and Polyfin infusion devices, concerning the over- and under-delivery of insulin therapy.

Medtronic informed patients, healthcare providers and pharmacies in Canada of the potential problem, to explain how to avoid it, according to the Brampton Guardian [3].

Source URL (retrieved on 01/26/2015 - 11:53am):

<http://www.mdtmag.com/news/2013/07/medtronics-insulin-pump-recall-gets-fdas-highest-risk-label>

Links:

[1] <http://www.massdevice.com/company/medtronic>

[2] <http://www.google.com/finance?q=mdt>

[3] <http://www.bramptonguardian.com/community-story/3850329-company-issues-safety-alert-about-insulin-pumps/>