

In Process Material Switch

The ability to change a durometer "on the fly" with a single unitary silicone extrusion has been perfected by engineers at Specialty Silicone Fabricators, Inc. This development pertains to those applications that require the durometer composition to vary along the length yet remain unitary in construction. The continuing need in the medical industry for such hybrid extrudable articles with unitary construction to function in versatile, custom configurations is met by SSF's unique material switch process.

Source URL (retrieved on 01/29/2015 - 5:35am):

<http://www.mdtmag.com/product-releases/2004/04/process-material-switch>